DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-3, 6, 9, 11-13, 17, 19, 22-25 and 27 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Hoyle, Jr. (U.S. Patent 2,824,342).

Hoyle discloses a post (Figure 2, for example) having a plurality of wood layers (Figure 5, for example) joined by adhesive.

Regarding the method steps recited in the apparatus claims, note that Hoyle could have been made in this manner.

Glue meets the recitation of a man-made material.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 4, 5, 7, 8, 10, 14-16, 18, 20, 21, 26 and 28 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hoyle, Jr., as applied above.

Art Unit: 3671

Hoyle does not teach the finger joint, relative wood strengths and pliabilities, or plastic; however, all are well known in wood laminate construction. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have used a finger joint, the relative strengths and pliabilites, or plastic with Hoyle in order to obtain desired structural characteristics.

Hoyle does not teach removal of the corners; however, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have removed the corners in order to, for example, obtain a desired visual appearance of the post.

Hoyle is silent regarding two component adhesive; however, this type of adhesive is very well known. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have used a two component adhesive with Hoyle in order to obtain very strong connections between the wood layers.

Regarding claim 20, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have used the method as claimed in order to obtain the apparatus formed by Hoyle.
